Nearly 100 years ago, the museum's namesake founders, Moody and Hannah Currier, envisioned a world-class art museum in the footprint of their former home – a cultural center of the city for generations to come. As the Currier Museum looks ahead to its centennial, that legacy lives on. Today, the Currier is a place where art, people, and ideas converge. With proud New England roots and a rising global reputation, the museum invites visitors of all backgrounds to make a personal connection with great art, encounter new possibilities, and be part of the timeless story of human creativity.
