Volume 7

Issue No. 3

October

This time of year has us reflecting on all the blessings the good Lord has seen fit to allow us to have. I know my cup runs over and the saucer underneath it is overflowing also. With all the events that have happened across our nation, I truly feel my blessings are great and many.

I hope your fall break was a rejuvenating time for you and you have been able to come back ready for all the craziness from now to Christmas.

Our speaker for the next meeting that will be November 14 at LMBC will be CL Gammon. Mr. Gammon has written several books and a few deal directly with Macon County history. He has reported to me that he may not have copies of the books that we might want. They are available from Amazon. I have a prime account and can order books for anyone else that might want some. It takes a few days to get them back so you might let me know by Tuesday November 7, if you want me to order for you.

I hope you will consider applying for the Liz Whorley Bradley or a Vision Foundation grant. The forms have been attached to the last two Leadership Links.

Information about the Xi State Legislative Symposium is also included. I hope some of you will consider going. With all that has been going on with the testing, it could prove to be an interesting time. Even if you do not want to stay the night, I hope a car load will drive down for the Panel on Tuesday night.

One other thing I hope you take notice of and consider is the beginning leadership conference. Maybe you and a friend could both apply and go together. It is a great learning experience and a great way to network with educators from across the state.

I am looking forward to seeing everyone on the 14th and if anyone is in charge of part of the meeting and you are unable to be there, please let me know so we can get it covered before the meeting.
